

BOSTON ORCHESTRA PLAYS

CHADWICK'S "CLEOPATRA" FOR THE FIRST TIME HERE.

An interesting symphonic poem part of Dr. Muck's programme at Carnegie Hall—Wagner, Schumann and Elgar the other composers who were represented.

The third afternoon concert of the Boston Symphony Orchestra took place yesterday afternoon at Carnegie Hall. Despite the fact that there was no soloist and that the weather had returned to its habitual state of torridity there was a large audience and the applause signified that enjoyment was general. The programme consisted of Elgar's overture, "In the South," Chadwick's symphonic poem, "Cleopatra," George Schumann's "Variations and Double Fugue on a Merry Theme," and Wagner's "Rienzi" overture. Dr. Muck's recognition of an American composer thus early in his career in this country was a graceful act and ought to help the pessimists to believe that native ability is not neglected by foreign conductors.

George W. Chadwick is one of the American composers who has produced some serious and admirable compositions. His "Cleopatra" was made known at Worcester festival two years ago, and was heard yesterday for the first time in this city. The subject has been treated by other composers, but that did not deter Mr. Chadwick from finding something of his own to say. The composition is well made, excellently scored and interesting to hear.

The thematic material is clearly defined and even the untrained listener can readily find the music intended to characterize the mighty and destructive passion of Antonius and the Egyptian queen, the martial movements of the Roman soldier and the final union of the two lovers in death. The work has dignity, solidity and expressiveness, and it will be strange if it does not again find its way into local programmes. It was superbly performed and conducted by Dr. Muck with genuine appreciation.

The orchestra was in excellent form yesterday afternoon and the concert as a whole was most enjoyable. It is good to know that such admirable orchestral playing can attract audiences without the aid of soloists.

OPERA JOYS OF YESTERDAY.

Emma Eames Pleases a Large Audience as Elia in "Lohengrin."

"Aida" was repeated at the Manhattan Opera House and "Lohengrin" at the Metropolitan yesterday afternoon. The audience which attended the former was not a large one, but that at the latter opera house was sufficient to fill the auditorium. Probably this was in some measure due to the reappearance of Emma Eames as Elia, a rôle in which she has always been popular with this public. She has made progress in the part since she first sang it here and her impersonation is now one of much beauty. She sings the music exquisitely, though perhaps not in a style altogether to the taste of Germans.

Mme. Kirkby-Lundy, who was the Ortrud, was not in her happiest vocal state. Mr. Burian, who had trouble at the previous performance of this opera sang Lohengrin very well, indeed, and the other old friends of the cast acquitted themselves in their usual fashion. Mr. Hertz conducted and the orchestral portion of the representation was good.

Last night "Carmen" was performed at the Manhattan before a large and enthusiastic audience. M. Renaud, who was scheduled to appear three nights in succession, was not unnaturally indisposed, and his place was taken by Mr. Sevelhae. Even this disappointment did not dampen the enthusiasm of the audience.

Mr. Dalmores, Mme. Bressler-Gianoli, Mme. Donalds, the ambitious and energetic chorus, the efficient orchestra and the all pervading Mr. Campanini were ably seconded by Mr. Gilbert and the piquant Miss Tremblay. The result was a lively and interesting performance.

"La Damnation de Faust" was exhibited at the Metropolitan last night. The only change in the cast was that of Mr. Régis for Mr. Chamin as Brander. The spectacular features of the work moved with their usual smoothness.

THE CONRIED BENEFIT.

"Salome" and Selections by Singers Not in the Cast.

In addition to the performance of Richard Strauss's "Salome" at the testimonial to Mr. Corried at the Metropolitan Opera House on January 22 there will be a concert which will employ all the singers in the company in operatic selections. Andreas Dippel has arranged the musical features, which will include duets from "Les Contes d'Hoffmann" of Offenbach, to be sung by Mmes. Louise Homer and Kirkby-Lundy; an aria from Boito's "Mefistofele," by Mme. Cavalieri; "La ci darem," by Don Giovanni, by Mmes. Geraldine Farrar and Signor Scotti; a duet by Alois Burgstaller and Mme. Fleischer-Edel from "Il Flauto Magico"; the letter song from "Le Nozze di Figaro," by Mmes. Sembrich and Eames; aria "Ah Paradiso" from "L'Africana," by Signor Caruso, and the trio from "Fidelio" by Miss Jessie Abbott and MM. Roussellière and Plançon.

Closed After a One Night Run.

"The Mimic and the Maid," a musical comedy which opened at the Bijou Theatre on Friday night, made a new Broadway record of a quick run by closing last evening. Two persons are said to have made an attempt to attend the last performance but there wasn't any.

GEORGE WHITE'S BOYS

Celebrate His Fiftieth Year as a Teacher in Public Schools.

George White's boys, the boys he taught at school here in this city when they were only youngsters, gathered again last night at the Hotel Savoy to honor their old schoolmaster. To be accurate, it was the seventh annual dinner of the George White Alumni Association and was an especial occasion because it marked the fiftieth year of Mr. White's teaching. An unusually large number of boys were present, bringing with them to the dinner their wives and sweethearts.

Among them all there was no one spyer, no one happier and no one younger looking than Mr. White himself. Although he is over 70 years old and has taught in New York's public schools—day and night both—for fifty years, he says that he can beat any boy in his school to-day at a sprint.

Mr. White has been principal of Grammar School 70 in East Seventy-fifth street since 1878. A graduate of the old Free Academy, which later became the College of the City of New York, he studied law in his youth and was admitted to the bar. Later his old schoolmaster induced him to take up teaching. Ever since that time he has been teaching on the East Side.

Among the guests and speakers at last night's dinner were Justus Morgan J. O'Brien, Chester B. McLaughlin, Edward Patterson, James Fitzgerald and John W. Goff. Ernest Dr. Dr. Thomas Hunter, Dr. John H. Finley, Randolph Guggenheimer, Nathaniel A. Elsborg and Edward Lauterbach.

IN SOCIETY.

Dances will absorb the attention of society this week. Mr. and Mrs. Elbridge T. Gerry give a dance to-morrow night for the first time in two seasons. On Wednesday Mrs. W. Starr Miller gives her first big affair for some time, a dinner dance. The second Delmonico dinner dance is on for Thursday, and on the 19th the big Saturday evening dancing class meets there. Between these is the Friday evening dance, to be given by Mrs. Henry O. Havemeyer.

Count and Countess Stanislaus de Castellane have been considerably entertained in Washington the past week. Countess d'Ivry arrived from England several days ago. Prince and Princess Cantacuzene sailed early in the week for Europe. Lady Alice Mon. was in the city to see the Duke of Newcastle, due to arrive from England next Thursday, attributes to New York the most exhilarating atmosphere known.

Worthington Whitehouse, who led the ocellon at the Whitney dance last Monday night, will lead again to-morrow at the big party to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Elbridge T. Gerry at their home, 2 East Sixty-first street. Mrs. Gerry and the Misses Gerry will receive in the drawing room on the fifth avenue side. Dancing will be in the heart gallery, which opens on the conservatory. The first supper will be served soon after the arrival of the guests, many of whom will first attend the opera, in the tapestried dining room at the left of the entrance.

Cards are out for the wedding of Miss Alice Winifred Post and Arthur Turnbull, to be celebrated on Tuesday week, January 22 in the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church. Afterward the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George B. Post, will give a breakfast at their home, 129 East Sixty-ninth street.

The Hon. Maud Pauncote, who has just arrived from England, will be the guest of Mrs. Richard Townsend at her Washington home. She is the daughter of the late Ambassador Sir Julian Pauncote and has a wide circle of friends here as well as at the Capital. Probably Miss Pauncote will return to England with Mrs. Townsend when she goes over in February. She and Miss Madeline Townsend will be in London for part of the season.

Miss Electra Havemeyer will have a dance given for her by her mother, Mrs. Henry O. Havemeyer, at her home on Friday night, January 18. Miss Havemeyer is one of the few debutantes who has as yet only had a coming out tea. On the same night as the Havemeyer ball Dr. Charles Stedman Bull of 47 West Thirty-sixth street will give a dance for his daughter, Miss Dorothy Bull.

Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Mills of 2 East Sixty-ninth street will give a big dance on the evening of Wednesday week, January 23, having changed the date from January 18. Some of the flowers used to decorate the salons will be brought from the conservatories at Hyde Park.

Cards will now be issued for the wedding of Miss Louise Vanderhoef and Gustave M. Heckscher, to take place on Wednesday, February 6, in St. Bartholomew's Church. Miss Vanderhoef will be attended by her sister, Mrs. Morgan. Coverman, as patron of honor and by the Misses Mary Vanderhoef, Mollie Maxwell, Kate Prentice, Antoinette Heckscher, Adelaide Knox and Anna Conly as bridesmaids. John Stevenson will assist as best man and Morin Hare, Ernest Tracy, Roger Flanders, George C. W. Low, Spencer Turner and Bailey Vanderhoef will be ushers. Dr. John Leighton Parks, the rector, will perform the ceremony. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Herman B. Vanderhoef will give a reception at their home, 40 West Fifty-eighth street.

Miss Irene Fitch Shepard and B. Devereux Barker of Boston will be married next Wednesday afternoon, January 16, in the Church of the Incarnation, Madison avenue and Thirty-fifth street. The Rev. Dr. William M. Grosvenor, the rector, will perform the ceremony. The bride will wear a costume of white satin, with lace, tulle and orange blossoms. She will be attended by her sister, Miss Dorothy B. Shepard, as maid of honor and by the Misses Margaret Scott of New York, Alice Shepard of Washington and Marian Jeffries of Boston as bridesmaids. Dr. John Dunlop of Washington will assist as best man.

A notable out of town wedding of the week will be that of Miss Margaret B. Perkins and Charles Greenough, to be celebrated next Tuesday, January 15, in Boston. The bride's cousin, Mrs. Lars Anderson, will attend her as matron of honor. She will marry in Washington the same day. Miss Love is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Healey Dall Love of 119 Twelfth street, who will give a breakfast after the ceremony.

The first big wedding for some time in St. George's Protestant Episcopal Church, in Stuyvesant square, will be that of Miss Beatrice Morgan and Frederic St. Frayn, to take place on Tuesday, February 5. Miss Pauline Morgan will attend her sister as maid of honor and the Misses Corinne Robinson, Janet Dana, Gladys Rice, Dorothy Kane, Mildred Carter, a cousin, Lily Lee Page, Louise Kobbé, Sylvia Parsons, Lydia Jones and Dorothy Snow will be bridesmaids. Mr. Frayn will have two ushers. Mr. and Mrs. William Fellows Morgan, the bride's parents, will give a reception after the church ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Demore Little, now on their honeymoon, will live in New York on their return. They had a big and pretty wedding on Wednesday afternoon in All Saints' Church. The bride wore a pendant of sapphires and diamonds and a pearl necklace. Her cream satin gown, trimmed with duchesse lace, was made in Empire style, as were the costumes worn by her attendants.

A large party of New Yorkers will start at once in a private car for Nashville, Tenn., to attend the wedding there next Tuesday, January 15, of Charles A. Moore, Jr., of this city and Miss Annette Stray. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Dr. Charles A. Moore, Jr., of this city and Miss Annette Stray. The bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sperry, at their home.

The musicals of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald de Koven at their home, 42 East Sixty-sixth street are among the very agreeable affairs scheduled for Sunday afternoon. Several leading artists of the grand opera assist on these occasions. Last week Mme. Lina Abartianoff was the vocalist. It is several years since Mr. and Mrs. de Koven gave similar entertainments at their home in Irving place. Last winter they had an apartment here in the Washington, and before that were in Washington, where Miss de Koven made her social debut.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Schoonmaker, the latter formerly Miss Grace Eaton, are passing the winter with Mr. and Mrs. Elbridge T. Gerry at their home, 2 East Sixty-first street.

BIG DOCKS FOR ROCK ISLAND.

Immense Terminal to Cost $5,000,000 to Be Built at Galveston.

GALVESTON, Tex., Jan. 12.—B. F. Youkum advises that he has arranged the financial details for the construction of immense docks and terminals at Galveston for the Rock Island-Frisco lines.

Plans for the terminals and docks call for the expenditure of nearly $5,000,000. Three piers 2,000 feet long and 300 wide, equipped with electrical freight conveyors, will afford berths for thirty vessels. Ten miles of track, the largest freight dock and warehouses in the South, a million bushel grain elevator and an electric power house will be built.

The Rock Island acquired the dock site three years ago, and the Frisco interests acquired the land terminal property. The joint terminals will be used by the Rock Island, the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico, the Trinity and Brazos Valley and the Colorado Southern.
